ESCOLA TÉCNICA SUPERIOR DE ARQUITECTURA A CORUÑA (UDC)

Campus da Zapateira
15071 A Coruña, España (ES)

In 1968, the Pedro Barrié de la Maza Foundation, created in 1966, began the process of creating a Higher Technical School of Architecture and a University School of Technical Architecture in A Coruña, under the auspices of the Ministry of Education. In 1973, the School of Architecture was created, still attached to the University of Santiago.

In 1971 the team led by Raymond Caravaty, director of the Center for Architectural Research at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute in Troy, New York, was hired to design the curriculum, and the architects Rodolfo Ucha, Juan Castañón and José María Laguna were hired to design the building. The current building did not come into operation until 1980.

The first faculty members were the Director, José Antonio Franco Taboada; the Secretary, José Luis Mosquera Suárez; Xosé Manuel Casabella López; Carlos Fernández-Gago; Jesús Arsenio Díaz; Javier Padín Vaamonde and Carlos Losada Varela.

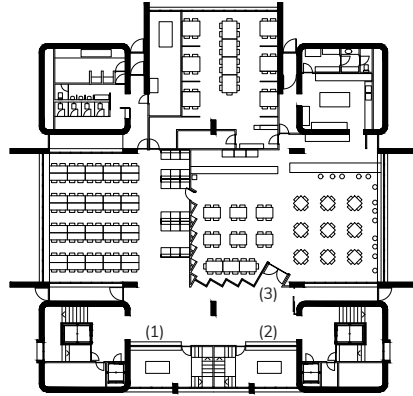

No ano 1968 a Fundación Pedro Barrié de la Maza, creada en 1966, inicia as xestión ante o Ministerio de Educación para crear unha Escola Técnica Superior de Arquitectura e unha Escola Universitaria de Arquitectura Técnica na Coruña. No ano 1973 nace a Escola de Arquitectura, adscrita aínda á Universidade de Santiago.

No ano 1971 contrátase ao equipo dirixido por Raymond Caravaty, director do Center for Architectural Research do Instituto Politécnico Rensselaer de Troy, Nova Iork, para a planificación educativa, e aos arquitectos Rodolfo Ucha, Juan Castañón e José María Laguna para deseñar o edificio. O edificio actual non entra en funcionamento ata 1980.

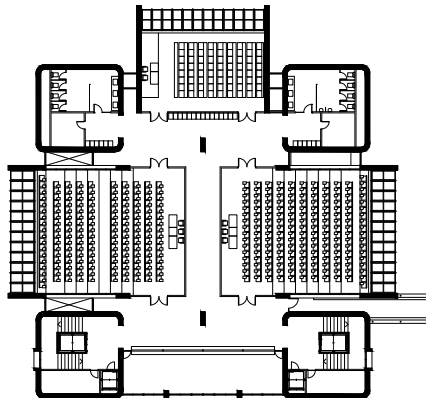

O primeiro claustro estaba formado por José Antonio Franco Taboada, director; José Luis Mosquera Suárez, secretario; Xosé Manuel Casabella López; Jesús Arsenio Díaz; Javier Padín Vaamonde; Carlos Fernández-Gago; e Carlos Losada Varela.
